BRIDGE SCHOLAR: DR. SAMUEL RAMSEY

Dr. Samuel Ramsey is the founder and director of the Ramsey Research Foundation. He completed his Bachelor of Science in Entomology from Cornell University in 2011, and focused his research on predatory & parasitic insect behavior. He cultivated an interest and expertise in the close relationships between insects and other creatures (symbioses), and dedicated his doctoral research to understanding a parasite killing honey bees globally (Varroa destructor). He graduated from the Engelsdorp lab at the University of Maryland, College Park.
